3 My darling Harry

4 Here we are, Father & I, all alone, but I assure you nevertheless, a very 5 happy pair— Will left us five days ago, for Newcastle, an island in Portsmouth Harbor,
6 where a new hotel has just been opened— He writes this morning, that the place does not 7 amount to much. That he took a sail yesterday to the Shoals which looks as delightful as 8 ever, but that he does not stay because there are too many women there whom he knows.
9 He advises us to go for two or three days, and says, “if you begin taciturnly, they will 10 probably let you alone.” He says he has had “a very active time since he left & no 11 reading, and feels very hearty” Alice & Aunt K— writes most satisfactorily from the 12 Bread Loaf Inn— The air is most delicious, the house good, the table most civilized and 13 substantial. Alice is enchanted with her horse=back exploits. The Mountain roads are 14 not fit for driving, but most delightful, and varied for the saddle. She says M<sup>r</sup> Battell, 15 (the landlord) is the most excellent soul; he seems to consider as a matter of course that 16 he should ride with every stray maiden that comes to the house” This as Alice is a novice
17 is a great comfort. She finds several very good horses there, and says she does’nt know 18 fear—
19 The company from all accounts is second rate, and no glimmer of “talent” has [^]yet[^] 20 appeared. They are waiting for [^]us.[^] You spoke of the excessive heat having 21 prostrated you, before you left Florence I trust you are entirely resuscitated by the 22 change—and long to hear that you have lost nothing of what you had gained Your paper

23 on Ravenna is in the last Nation, also two sets of Italian notes in the last two 24 Independents. The last very short. Father thinks they had divided them—
25 I presume from what Aunt Mary said in a recent letter, that you will meet in Homburg—
26 Libby Gourlay writes to announce Kitty Van Buren’s engagement to M<sup>r</sup> Peyton Miller of 27 Albany a young lawyer, very bright and gentlemanly, and from all accounts a most 28 excellent match for her— The Gourlays are devoted to Kitty, and seem very happy about 29 her prospects of happiness—
30 I find in my Portfolio a recent letter from Wilky, the contents of which will interest you, 31 so I put it in— Bob’s last letter gave a nice account of Mary’s début and his too, in 32 Oratorio, to get a belfry for the congregational Church. The piece was Esther. He says, 33 “Mary has a very sweet expressive voice, and acted her part with great understanding and 34 grace— She was received with a storm of applause whenever she appeared.” The mayor 35 of a neighboring town, had sent to beg them to repeat the performance for their 36 entertainment, and they had consented. This must be quite a refreshing diversion from 37 baby tending & station master’s duties—
38 They have been having a very cool, wet summer— I hope not too much rain for the 39 pleasure seekers in the Mts and by the sea—
40 The Bootts are enjoying themselves at Rye beach— I think they mean to try and get in 41 with us next month— Oceans of love from us both

42 Your loving

43 Mother

44 Love to the Tweedies if they are with you

45

46 Tom Ward gave a poor account of his Mother and Bessy, he said they were quite run 47 down, and had gone to Divonne I think— Bessy hopes to be married next month, when 48 her who came home to bring unfortunate Anne and her children, will have returned—49 Poor M<sup>r</sup> Ward, what a lot his must be, with the Romanism and ill health, of all his 50 family— This marriage and exile of Bessy's seems the sadest of all—
